Risk Management

The ASX Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations (4th Edition) provides fundamental principles for a strong corporate governance framework. Whilst compliance with the ASX Principles is not mandatory, companies are required to report and explain any deviations from the Principles. The Board believes that the Principles represent a sound basis for good governance.

The Committee, as delegated by the Board, has an important role to play in providing oversight of the Company's approach to risk management. Specifically, the Committee will:

- Understand and endorse the Company's risk appetite. Risk appetite is the amount of risk an organisation is willing to accept in pursuit of stakeholder value. The Company's management should engage with the Committee to establish a mutual understanding of the Company's overall appetite for risks as determined by the Board

- Review the extent to which management has established an effective system of risk management and internal control. The Committee should consider the effectiveness of existing risk management processes and require management to demonstrate the effectiveness of those processes in identifying, assessing and managing the Company's most significant risk exposures.
- Review the Company's risk profile by comparison to its risk appetite. Effective oversight of risks is contingent on the ability of the Committee to understand and assess the Company's strategies for managing its critical risk exposures. The Committee should consider any circumstances where the Company may need to operate outside the agreed risk appetite and whether such circumstances require reporting to the Board.
- Undertake periodic review of the Company's most significant risks and whether risk management strategies are appropriate. Risks constantly evolve and regular updating by management to the Committee of key risks and associated risk strategies is critical to effective Board oversight of key risk exposures.

Tax Risk Management and Compliance (TRMC)

In reviewing and monitoring the Company's tax risk management and governance, the Committee shall consider the following:

- Assurance as to the operational effectiveness of the Company's formal TRMC framework;
- Appropriateness of critical tax policies and judgements applied in the preparation of financial reports and compliance obligations;
- Implications of expected changes in prevailing and applicable tax laws to the Company's operating business and structure;
- Comfort that the thresholds and timing for escalation of tax risks to the Committee and Board are set at an appropriate level; and
- The Company's tax profile, including its effective tax rate and the basis for any significant deviation from the prevailing corporate tax rate.

Internal Control Framework

The Committee will monitor the performance of the internal control framework through:

- Review of the effectiveness of internal financial processes and controls implemented by management; and
- Assessing the impact of any adverse external and internal audit findings on internal control systems.

The Company's internal audit function reports directly to the Committee on the outcomes of its reviews. The Board has endorsed an Internal Audit Charter that sets out the requirements of the internal audit function.
